The state suffrage associations o oth North and South Carolina have indorsed the work of the national conessional committee of the American National Woman Suffrage Association, ecording to telegraphic advices received by the chairman of the commit-

The suffrage conventions in both these states were held last week, and he two conventions decided to indorse the two conventions decided to indorse the work being done by the congresum akes good with the business men as makes good with the business men as men in my office," said the Secretary. Association of North Carolina.

South Carolina is one of the states which already has made its plans to co-operate with the congressional committee in the "big drive" for the Susan B Anthony amendment. Under the leadership of Mrs. M. T. Coleman of Abbeville. formerly president of the state association, as well as state congressional chairman, district suffrage conventions will be held simultaneously November 16 in each of the seven congressional districts of the state.

Congressmen to Be Invited.

Each representative and senator will be invited to attend the meeting in his district, and resolutions will be passed requesting him to vote for the suffrage endment in Congress. These district meetings will be held all over the country in the non-suffrage states, the country in the non-suffrage states, and the resolutions, besides being delivered as a parting reminder to the individuals, will be gathered up and presented to Congress as a body when the national suffrage convention meets in Washington in December. Six other southern states have joined in this movement to convince congressmen of the earnestness of the demand of their woman constituents for equal suffrage.

One of the most pathetic classes of cases that has come to the attention of the association is the number of gentlewomen from homes of culture and refinement, who, through the stress of circumstances, are forced to look for some chance to put their shoulders to the wheel for their families or for themselves. The association now has a large number of such good women looking for places as companions, house-keepers, social secretaries and the like—women who are splendidly equipped for women who are splendidly equipped for such duties and each one of whom can go to a prospective employer with the very best of credentials.

Central Labor Union Asks Secretary

McAdoo to Prevent Employes From Aiding Private Firms. The Central Labor Union at a meeting

last night adopted a resolution calling upon Secretary McAdoo to take steps to prevent employes of the bureau of engraving and printing from giving their time, skill, knowledge or experience to private corporations or governments in Europe which intend to handle work formerly done by American firms. This step was taken in view of the fact that the International Association of Steel and Copper Plate Printers, at whose request, through its local branch, the resolution was passed, has learned that foreign corporations are endeavoring to keep in their own endeavoring to keep in their own countries contracts which formerly were filled in the United States, and have found or will find it necessary to obtain for that purpose the use of America's skilled printers.

No reference occurred in the text of the resolution to indicate that employes of the government bureau here have given such assistance to foreign competitors, the action being viewed rather in the light of a precautionary measure.

The directors also indorsed the movement started by William A. Rogers to organize a Board of Trade Glee Club by authorizing the placing of a plano in the board's headquarters, where rehearsals may be held.

New members were elected to the board as follows: Joseph Richards, Reginald W. Geare, Henry H. Burroughs, J. Maury Dove, Jr.; Arthur Browne, James R. Wheeler, Edward Voight, jr.: George M. Yeatman, the Washington and Virginia Railway Company, E. Hilton Jackson and James F. Tiffany.

A feature of the meeting was an address by Rabbi Morris Lazaron of Baltimore on "The Objects of the Sisterhood," in which the speaker made a strong plea for a true religious spirit in the home as one of the most fundamental of all sisterhood objects.

Musical numbers were rendered, including a piano solo by Mme. Lina Stobbe. Mrs. Abram Simon announced that all is in readiness for the vaude-ville entertainment to be given Sunday night at the Belasco.
